Topics for workshop sessions include:

1. Toxics Use Reduction (TUR): What it is and where it is happening around the country. Right to Act (RTA): what it is and its relation to TUR.
2. The TUR/RTA campaign in Michigan: What has been happening and directions for the future.
3. Researching toxic pollution at industrial facilities and developing strategies to reduce it at its source.
4. Mapping toxics in your community and in your workplace: organizing strategies for reducing toxic hazards.
5. Developing coalitions between workers and citizens at local plants: a case study in neighbor-labor agreements.

Other sponsors for the event include the Michigan Environmental Council, PIRGIM, and the Michigan Right to Act Campaign.

About INFORM:

INFORM is a national environmental research organization that emphasizes a preventive approach to today's pollution problems. INFORM has published numerous reports and books on pollution prevention, including its landmark report: Cutting Chemical Wastes. Marian Wise, Esq. a senior associate from INFORM will train community activists how to use their forthcoming publication, Preventing Industrial Toxic Hazards: A Guide for Communities.
